

24-30, 2018 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. There were over 250 separate events, with more than 500 presenters and 3,516 library professionals from 113 countries in attendance.

This year's annual meeting was themed "Transform Libraries, Transform Societies." The National Central Library (NCL) submitted a poster and was accepted. The poster displayed the Taiwan Memory database and showcased the transformation of digital services over a decade. Not only was the evolution of the database documented, but also the NCL's abundant holdings and resources were on display. The poster was competing with another 121 posters from 38 countries for the best poster award. The NCL's Assistant Editors Li-ling Chen and Chao-min Chiu attended the meeting and presented the poster. Through explaining the content of the poster, staff members were able to interact with fellow library professionals from across the globe, achieving great success in international marketing efforts.

The NCL's poster attracts the attention of library professionals.

■ The NCL Attends the 22nd European Association for Chinese Studies Conference

The European Association for Chinese Studies (EACS) has provided a grand event of discussion and exchange for the international Chinese studies community. From August 29 to September 1, 2018, the University of Glasgow in Scotland hosted the EACS conference, which is held biennially. The theme of the conference was "China and the World: The Mapping of Exchange." National Central Library (NCL)'s Head Kun-hsien Tseng and Dr. Jane Liau attended the conference.

The NCL and the Center for Chinese Studies invited the Chiang Ching-kuo Foundation to hold an exhibition during the conference. On display were books, periodicals, and audio-visual materials on Chinese studies published in Taiwan in the last three years, totaling 312 titles (327 volumes). After the conference ended, the sets of the books on display were donated to the University of Glasgow and the University of Edinburgh. On August 30, NCL's Head Tseng held a donation ceremony. The donations were received by Professor Clare Willsdon on behalf of University of Glasgow and Dr. Shen-xiao Tong on behalf of the University of Edinburgh respectively.
