■ NCL Will Host “Libraries in a Changing Century: International Symposium Celebrating Nine Decades of the National Central Library”

To celebrate the National Central Library’s 90th anniversary, the NCL will hold a two-day conference “Libraries in a Changing Century: International Symposium Celebrating Nine Decades of the National Central Library” from April 20 to 21, 2023. This conference will invite 11 Director-Generals of prestigious national libraries in the world to participate and give talks, thereby promoting professional cooperation and international exchanges in addition to bring in new knowledge and to motivate library practitioners.

This International Symposium will include four sessions as follows:

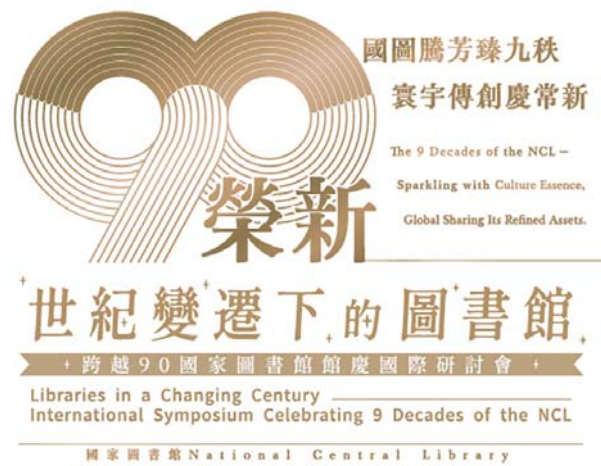

Session I: Pandemic Impacts Bring Libraries Impetus for Change

Session II: Smart Technology Leading Libraries into a New World of Service

Session III: Libraries Practicing Sustainable Development as a Force for Good in the World

Session IV: Interregional Exchange Creating New Values for Integrated Library Development
